Great Britain's New Embassy in Washington

Work on the beautiful buildings of the new British embassy in Washington is nearing completion. The location is ideal—on aristocratic Massachusetts avenue next to the Naval Observatory grounds.

Gathering Virginia Apples for the English

Scene in the Winchester region of Virginia while a part of the state's usual export crop of a million barrels of apples was being picked. These summer apples are shipped mainly to England.

CALENDAR REFORMER

An interesting visitor to Washington recently was Moses B. Cotsworth, the man who has done more than any other in bringing calendar simplification to the world's attention. He is the originator of the 13-months international fixed calendar, and is internationally known. Mr. Cotsworth was advisor to the League of Nations on calendar reform, and has sailed for South America, with credentials from the league, to interest governments there in the subject.

WINS TWENTY GAMES

Aided by home runs from the bats of his teammates, George Earnshaw fairly breezed into his twentieth victory, which had been so difficult of attainment. The Philadelphia right-hander thus became the first major league pitcher to reach the twenty mark.

Term for Light Year

Luxan is a new term for the light year astronomical unit of distance suggested by Arthur Ebbels, in a communication to the Astronomical Society of the Pacific. It is the Latin for "light year," which is the distance that light, speeding at about 186,000 miles in a second, travels in a year. Expressed in a more common unit, the light year is equal to 6,000,000,000,000 miles.—Exchange.

Sounds O. K.

To hunt on a farmer's land in many places in Germany, it is first necessary to get permission. A price is set on every piece of game taken off his land, and he usually is paid the market price for the game.

Seen in Better Light

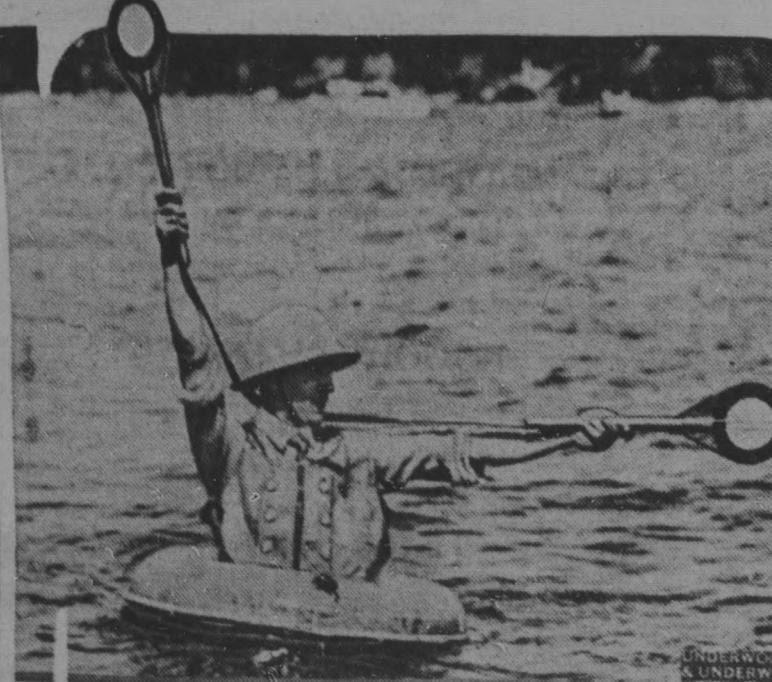

There is perhaps no time at which we are disposed to think so highly of a friend as when we find him standing higher than we expected in the esteem of others.—Sir Walter Scott.

Big Bill Comes From the Orient

Harold J. Coolidge of the Kelly-Roosevelt expedition with the Giant Hornbill shot in a remote part of Indo China for the collection of the Field Museum of Natural History at Chicago. Coolidge, twenty-five-year-old naturalist, is a distant cousin of former President Coolidge and a member of the staff of Harvard university.

Berlin Has a Water Traffic Cop

Herr Hammer, the water traffic cop on the Wannsee, popular resort lake near Berlin. He's signaling to a pleasure craft to stop. When he is not regulating traffic he uses his signals to paddle around. On his feet are metal paddles which he uses to "walk." His suit is of rubber, equipped with a pneumatic buoy.

THINGS WORTH RECORDING

Twenty-nine states now levy a tax of 4 cents or more on gasoline. Motor vehicles registered in Berlin numbered 33,482 June 1.

In time of peace prepare for war; the honeymoon cannot last forever. A 65-story brick building, 840 feet tall, is being constructed in New York. Recent reports are that about 2,000 natives from Africa are sold as slaves annually in Arabia.

Many a man has kept his peace of mind by not giving advice. When a man has nothing to do he always attends to it personally. Like attracts like; an empty purse usually means an empty stomach.

A woman who tells fortunes from a teneup isn't necessarily a seeress. A sportsman recently reported that he had shot, during his career, more than 50,000 wild ducks.

NATIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPIONS—1929

GREATER INTEREST IN WORLD SERIES

Fans Show Eagerness for Ducats at Higher Prices.

(By CHAS. H. CROWELL.)
Interest in baseball is more intense this year than it has been for some time, as is evidenced by the fans' eagerness for ducats for the world series. Tickets are being sold at a good premium and those fans who have their seats reserved are in big luck. Scalpers are taking advantage of the situation to reap a harvest, and although both stands have been enlarged as much as possible, the devotees are going to find it difficult to get a seat.

Predictions were made early in the season that the people attending this year's world series would be small because so many sport lovers had gone over to golf, tennis, track, field and other games. However, late comers are going to experience the same trouble in obtaining seating accommodations that they have in previous years.

The usual arguments, pro and con, as to the relative merits of the various players are being indulged in and betting is about as usual, with opinion evenly divided. In some quarters of the East the Athletics rule as slight favorites, on account of their pitchers. This is the second time the Cubs and Athletics have clashed, the two teams coming together first in 1910 when the Athletics won 4 games to 1. The Athletics won two other series, one in 1911 from the Giants and again in 1913, also from the Giants.

The only two games Cap Anson ever participated in in world series were in 1885 and 1886, when he was defeated by Charlie Comiskey, then manager of the St. Louis Browns. Comiskey came to life again in 1917, when his team, led by "Pants" Rowland, defeated John McGraw's Giants. McGraw and his Giants have won the series three times, while Connie Mack has been successful three times. Miller Huggins and his Yankees have won the prize three times. Three times McGraw and Huggins have clashed, the Giants winning twice. Frank Chance and Feller Jones came together in Chicago in 1906, the American leaguers winning.

From 1884 to 1890 American association and National league champion teams battled for the world title, a baseball war in 1891 stopping competition. The world series of 1892 was between the teams that finished first in the National league split season—the only divided campaign.

In 1884 Providence of the National league and the Metropolitans of the American association played the first series for the world title, Providence capturing three straight games. World series rivalry between the National and American leagues began in 1903. There was no series in 1904, President Brush of the Giants refusing to meet the Boston Red Sox until such time as the national commission would formulate rules to govern the games.

Results of past world series between National league and American league teams:

1903—Boston, A. L., 5 games; Pittsburgh, N. L., 3 games.
1904—No series.
1905—New York, N. L., 4 games; Philadelphia, A. L., 1 game.

1906—Chicago, A. L., 4 games; Chicago, N. L., 2 games.

Eddie Collins, at forty-two, sees action occasionally as pinch hitter for the Athletics.

Wally Gilbert, Brooklyn third baseman, is rated as one of the rookie finds of the season.

Charity Begins at Home

The most charitable and philanthropic individual in all the world is the American citizen. Many times each year the cry for aid comes through the ether waves from all four corners of the earth and as soon as these distress signals reach our ears, America responds generously, bountifully. Regardless of when a catastrophe may strike, no matter where starving women and children may be in need; America responds immediately. We succor the needy, we relieve distress, we feed the starving, whenever the need arises, the world over. America is the world's greatest benefactor. May this national characteristic be forever one of the outstanding qualities of the American citizen!

An analysis shows that while we are promoting the welfare of humanity in far lands, often we overlook those in dire distress in our immediate locality. Charity should begin at home. We are foregoing one of life's greatest opportunities if we fail to answer the cries of our needy neighbors. What more worthy charity can be found than to restore the minimum standards of living to every family in our own town.

In the average community, from five to ten per cent of all families are in need of charitable assistance. The chief causes of this poverty are: Unemployment, sickness and family difficulties. Temporary financial assistance, proper care, counsel and advice fulfill the charitable needs of most charity cases.

The leading cause of poverty—unemployment—may be eliminated, as has been pointed out, by building a bigger and better community. Every member of this community should have the opportunity to earn. Constant employment should be offered to every citizen.

Of next importance in the elimination of poverty, is to keep people employable—that is, physically, mentally and morally fit. Sickness is largely preventable. However, in cases where the community has a standard of health and prevention measures, and charitable assistance is necessary on account of sickness, then trained medical charity is necessary. There is no greater corps of unacknowledged, unselfish, conscientious charity workers than the doctors, dentists, nurses and hospitals in every community.

About one-third of all charity cases are the result of mismanagement of personal and family affairs. These cases can best be handled through the personal contact of church leaders, civic and commercial organizations and the sympathetic understanding of individual citizens and business men.

The best form of charity and social welfare work of which a community can boast lies in simple, friendly, neighborly advice and help; the counsel of the church, the interest of the school, and help on the part of the employer and the merchant—this is a real form of social service.

When we are called upon to contribute our time and money for local charity, let's all respond immediately and gladly. Let's help create a "Community With a Heart" for.

Mothers Appreciate Safety Movement

THAT there is a human side to business as well as a purely commercial side is illustrated by the action of an oil company on the Pacific coast which has been erecting air beacons every 50 miles from Canada to Mexico. This company has been a leader in aviation development.

Aviation has caused mothers (and fathers) of the present generation great anxiety and worry because of the interest their sons (and daughters) take in this newest branch of sport and industry. Boys (and even girls) take to the air like ducks to water.

A mother said to the president of the oil company mentioned:

"You are doing everything in your power to encourage aviation, which naturally increases the sale of your product. Do you not think you owe it as a duty to the mothers of the boys who fly the ships and the girls who ride in them, to help make aviation more practical and safe by erecting suitable markers for guidance of flyers at night?"

Here was a problem to which real human interest attached. The head of the company accepted the challenge. He said:

"We are pioneering in the field of air transportation and we will pioneer in the field of airway illumination."

The result has been the greatest system of air beacons up and down the Pacific coast that exists in the United States and probably in the world. Just as the Pacific coast led the country with paved automobile roads, it is now leading the country with properly illuminated air beacons.

This enterprise represents the progressive or human side of industry which cannot be figured in cold and dollars and cents.

The Great Compromise

FOR 140 years the United States constitution has stood, regarded both at home and abroad as one of the greatest human documents in existence. Yet the constitution was a compromise; a giving-in by various factions in a new government. In almost every part the constitution shows the effects of this compromise; and herein lies its strength and its permanence.

Had the constitution been framed by any of the factions which sought control of the government following the formative period, would it be the constitution today? We believe not. It is beyond the wisdom of any man or set of men to devise a document which will successfully govern a nation at a period centuries later. But if the document is a successful compromise between and among the various forces which make up a nation, it will partake of the national qualities of that nation, and may be expected to last as long as those qualities characterize that people.

It is to the credit of the people of the United States that the sterling qualities of the pioneer settlers are still so strong that the constitution as prepared by them is still applicable today. When respect for that constitution and for the law which it provides shall have waned to a point where it is no longer satisfactory to the people of this nation, then we may assume that the word, "American," means something different from what it meant when the cornerstone of the nation was planted, and that the people of the United States have changed in spirit and quality.

Therefore, the constitution, being more characteristic of America than either the flag or the national anthem, should have the respect of every citizen. To maintain that respect for the document which forms not alone the backbone of our nation, but the gauge of our national qualities should be the duty and pride of every one who calls himself an American.

Beauty seen is never lost.—Whittier.

ed with the late John Murray in sinking shafts on the property and again a large sum of money was lost in the hopeless task of seeking the filthy lucre. The mine also proved a failure.

In the eighties a man named Domingo, for many years a cook for Banker Larco, first president of the Italian Bank who committed suicide on his ranch at Portola, and now a part of the Macdonough stock farm, left his employment and established a mining claim on the Larco holdings. Domingo became a recluse, rarely leaving his mining property, which he worked sporadically. He was known as a mystery man. Occasionally he came to Redwood City, and like Scotty of Death Valley fame, would flash gold dust in large quantities. It was believed that he had a hidden source of gold on the property. Domingo died suddenly without disclosing the source of his wealth. The mining shafts were inspected and for weeks miners dug for the supposed hidden treasure without result. Domingo carried his secret with him to the grave. The large openings on the side of the hill and caves still remain, mute evidence of the work done by the eccentric miner over a quarter of a century ago.

There is gold in "them thar hills" over looking Redwood City but it has never been found in paying quantities.

Twenty New Amendments Up To People

(By United Press)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 17.—(UP)—Voters of Redwood City will pass judgment on 20 proposed constitutional amendments, two state bond issues totaling $30,000,000, and several initiative measures now under way, at the 1930 general election.

This was made known here today by Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan. The bond issues, he said, include $20,000,000 to complete California's farm and home loan program for ex-service men, and $10,000,000 to improve San Francisco harbor.

Daylight saving, permanent registration of voters, and resumption of hydraulic mining are among the initiative measures in process of preparation. Permanent registration would be allowed a citizen only if he votes at each election. Failure to do this would cancel his registration.

Y. M. C. A. Plans Drive For Funds

Thirty-seven men have volunteered to act as captains and workers in Redwood City on the annual Young Men's Christian Association financial campaign which will start next Monday. It is expected to have fifty or more volunteers in the campaign organization by Monday evening when the opening dinner will be held at the high school cafeteria beginning at 6:30 p. m.

D. W. Williams, campaign chairman for Redwood City, reports that if the response on the part of the workers is met with an equal enthusiasm on the part of the public in their giving, the goal for Redwood will be reached within the week.

Redwood City has won considerable publicity because of the results they have shown in the past going "over the top" in record time in this effort.

Henry Witte, chairman of the downtown district and John Gill, chairman of the residential district, are busy lining up captains and workers so that the organization will be ready and in as smooth running order as possible from the very "kick-off" of the campaign.

The local men who have supervision over the general work of the association in Redwood City are very enthusiastic over the amount and caliber of the work which has been carried on for all ages of boys and young men by this organization during the past year and recommend to the public its generous support for this character building work.

Simultaneous campaigns will be carried on in all the San Mateo county communities which are being served by this organization.

San Carlos is setting up a strong organization for the support of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association which is being done not only in the two boys' clubs but also in helpfulness to other community agencies.

Harry Gee, chairman of the finance campaign, assisted by John Cowgill, Dr. W. H. Catchell, Hugh S. McCord, H. W. Mahany, Ira S. Stinson are recruiting workers and setting up a strong organization for the promotion of this effort, which will run Sept. 23 to 30.

J. V. Neuman of Woodside will act as chairman in the annual campaign for the financing of the work of the Young Men's Christian Association in this district. An organization of workers is being set up for the solicitation for funds in this district simultaneously with the other communities in San Ma-

High Suicide Rate To Be Given Study

By ELWOOD SQUIRES

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 18.—(UP)—An abnormally high suicide rate in California, compared with other states, should be subject for a rigid investigation, with steps taken to counteract the trend, in the opinion of the state department of public health.

San Mateo county reported 14 suicides during the past year, with 1,330 deaths from this cause in the entire state.

The problem is generally central in the cities, according to the public health department. About 60 per cent of all suicides occur in metropolitan areas.

"To determine the exact cause for California's high suicide rate would require most extensive and elaborate research," said Dr. Walter M. Dickie, head of the health department.

"We are only able to guess at the complex factors involved. Suicide may be considered as a phenomenon and a decided departure from the normal. The fact that 1,330 residents of the state took their lives last year should focus attention upon the problems associated with the causes of suicide.

The hair has a surprisingly strong influence over the general aspect of charm. Our special sets in hair dressing and designing tell us that there are seldom two heads alike, but that women too often fail to realize that copying another woman's coiffure makes her too commonplace.

S. F. Appropriates Fund for Serra Rd.

The San Francisco supervisors on Monday voted to appropriate the sum of $90,312, San Francisco's cost of constructing Junipero Serra boulevard from the county line in San Francisco to School street in Colma. This will form the first unit of a road which will be extended in time as far as Burlingame, and will later be connected with the various links of the Alameda de las Pulgas to form another highway from San Francisco down the peninsula to Los Altos.

Fire Threatens Welding Works

A fire threatened for a while to demolish the James Heath welding works on Beech street between Main and Lothrop streets Wednesday morning. While welding the frame of a truck, workmen failed to notice that the gasoline tank of the machine was leaking until a small pool of gasoline on the floor became ignited from the welding flames. The fire spread to the gas tank of the truck and within a few seconds the flames leaped to the roof of the building.

Quick action on the part of the welders who extinguished the flames with sand, saved the truck as well as the welding works. The fire was extinguished before the firemen were summoned.

Fire Destroys Roof of House of John Hoffman

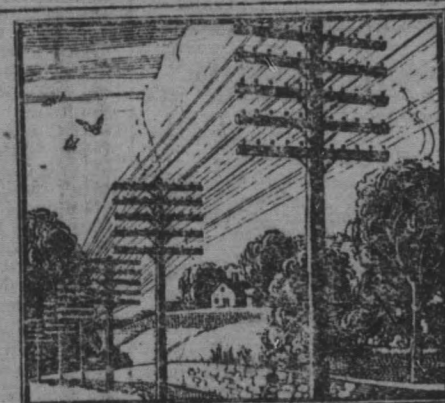

A house at Ebner and Poplar streets, belonging to John Hoffman of this city, was badly damaged shortly before noon Wednesday when a fire of unknown origin started near the roof. The fire had gained considerable headway before it was noticed and almost the entire roof of the structure was burned before firemen could bring the flames under control. An airplane housed in an adjacent shed was saved by the quick action of the fire department. The alarm was answered by Tony Prusch with the pumper from the main fire house.

Sheriff J. J. McGrath and Chief of Police Collins returned yesterday afternoon from the convention of sheriffs and peace officers held in Oakland.

Miss Katherine Belcher, who with Miss June Gray, made a trip to the Orient, this summer, returned Sunday to her duties in the local school. Miss Belcher has been visiting relatives in Eureka since her return from abroad.

Marchers on the Road of Progress

SINCE the dawn of time, man has longed for voice to talk to distant friends, and eyes to see things and friends remote.

Every marching rank of telephone poles means that man can now talk readily over the miles.

And in the Bell Laboratories in New York, where television was first demonstrated in 1927, it has been found how to carry the human voice and human sight around the world, although how to make this economically practical is yet to be discovered.

There is no standing still in the Bell System, either as regards the Telephone or as regards kindred sciences which, like the Telephone, will help make the world a better place to live in.

NEWS BRIEFS

San Jose residents will pay a total city, school district and county tax of $6.37 for the fiscal year 1932-1933, instead of the present rate of $5.95.

For an amount said to be approximately $2000 less than paid last year, the City Council awarded to the Valley Electric Light and Power Company a contract for street lighting for the next year.

Ninety cases of trout were distributed in Greenville territory by the State Fish and Game Commission, and the trout were planted in Feather River streams by thirty-five Greenville sportsmen of the Feather River Fish and Game Club.

The San Jose Chamber of Commerce will stage the biggest drive in its history in October, according to Jack Silver, manager. "We are going to try by every means possible to demonstrate to the people of this city the service we are rendering every day in the year," declared Silver.

In line with most counties of the state, Tulare county will keep its tax rate at the same level with last year. The new budget just approved increases valuations permitting the rate to remain at $3.55 per $100 valuation outside cities and $2.65 inside incorporated cities. The county will raise a total of $2,136,367.

The Railroad Expense Agency has applied to the Railroad Commission for authority to abandon its agencies at Cores Marsh and Hamilton in the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

Assuming that the San river is at the lowest stage in its history, farmers living along that stream have decided to form an organization to protect their land, the fish in the stream and check additional "inlets" of water by power companies.

The name of Fresno is to be displayed on the stern of another steamship sailing the seven seas. The liner San Jose has decided to change the name of its refrigeration ship, British steamer Woodward, to Fresno, in honor of the San Joaquin Valley metropolis, which ships large quantities of fruit for overseas markets.

Members of the Women's Council have asked the City Council at Sacramento to approve the recommendation of City Manager J. C. Kluegel for the appointment of a policewoman. The women believe a trained social worker should be appointed to work with the police department. Mrs. Harry W. Blane, president of the council, declared 229 cities throughout the country have policewomen who are trained in social work.

With the scheduled construction of eighteen new dwellings, home building in Fairbairn took a quiet turn in August that sent the valuation of construction permits issued during the month to $13,588, nearly $6,000 above the valuation of $7,577 reported for August, 1931. The month's total brought the valuation of all permits issued to date this year to $1,136,246, slightly below the total of $1,283,639 for the first eight months of last year.

With initiation of the scientific world present, the new $75,000 western laboratory of Washington, D. C., was dedicated at Stanford. Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the institution, dedicated to more than 100 guests the laboratory of the organization's study of plant biology and its attempt to further, through the new unit, "scientific research and its application to most human needs." Stanford had been selected as a site, he said, because of the opportunity it offered for co-operation between the Carnegie staff and other scientists working along similar lines. He was introduced by the presiding officer, Dr. Henry S. Gentry, vice president of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute.

New water mains have been laid by the Metropolitan Water Company under several streets in Truckee, replacing antiquated pipes, with the object of reducing leakage and conserving the water supply in the company's reservoirs above town. Check valves have been installed by each fire hydrant to permit repairs without shutting off the entire town's supply. J. S. Powell, officer of the water company, and J. B. Maxson, local plumbing contractor, are supervising the work.

The Truckee Ski Club, pioneer organization of the West, which has been inactive for several years, was reorganized recently at a meeting of former members. The following officers were elected: John Rablin, president; Captain E. Peterson, secretary; J. N. Worswick, J. S. & A. representative; secretary; T. O'Hanlon, Truckee hotel man, treasurer. Board of directors includes: Thomas Chabot, San Francisco attorney; J. B. Rablin, Truckee mill contractor; Dr. C. C. Sixteen miles of state highway between Auburn and Colusa have been resurfaced by the State Highway Commission, and two new concrete bridges, one at Bowman and the other at New England Mills have been opened to traffic. Several sharp curves have been eliminated as a result.

Two San Diego firms and one Stockton concern submitted lowest bids on three state highway projects on which the state will spend approximately $200,000. R. E. Hansen Construction Company and Hollister Construction Company, both of San Diego and Lilly, Willard & Blount of Stockton got the contracts.

Elimination of two dangerous grade crossings at Colusa and Berkeley, De la Cruz county, was assured with the advent to the Pacific of Talman of a $50,000 contract for constructing Colusa underpass. Another main San Joaquin Valley highway improvement for which contract was awarded is the $20,000 task of grading and surfacing 1.1 miles between Turner station and Mariposa road in San Joaquin county. Lilly, Willard & Blount of Stockton were awarded the contract.

Up in Michigan Bluff, one of the old deserted mining camps and "ghost towns" of California's early days, is a sewing machine that weighs one and one-half tons. It is to be taken to Sacramento and placed with other relics of pioneer days at Sutter's Fort. A. H. Brown, director of finance, announced. The machine, a sewing machine, which in the old days was used to sew canvas shoes used by miners in hydraulic mining operations, is an iron long three feet wide and has a head as unlike the sewing machine of today it was needed six inches long.

Standardization of the salaries of state traffic officers in the various counties will be undertaken by the State Division of Motor Vehicles, it was announced by Eugene W. Hill, chief, superintendent of the state highway patrol. A tentative check on the payrolls shows a variance in salaries of officers, some counties paying as high as $500 a month and others as low as $150. Since the new motor vehicle act puts all officers directly under state control, Hill said, uniform salaries should be uniform. Frank G. Spoor, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles, called attention to the new law making them subject to arrest if they damage any other machine and attempt to avoid responsibility by sneaking away.

Surplus money in the general fund of the state at the close of the 1931-1932 fiscal period, is $31,100,000, or nearly $2,200,000 more than estimated according to A. R. Hoen, director of the state department of finance. The estimated surplus for June 30, 1932, in view of special appropriations, is $32,300,000. Special appropriations, providing new functions, are estimated at $4,500,000. Various restrictions justified on the ground that surplus and revenues are larger than state requirements will bring about a reduction of revenue of some $11,000,000, a total of $25,800,000 required revenues and increased appropriations.

California forest and field fires for the current season, many of them of incendiary origin, have destroyed 249,128 acres and caused a loss of $241,599, according to a report issued by State Forester M. E. Pratt. Accidents of 171 fires in Los Angeles county that were not limited by the state, the total number of fires in 1931, the report shows. Damage to timber has totaled only $79,200 on 482 acres; 142,322 acres of range, valued at $14,000, was destroyed; the brush area, burned totals 30,896 acres; 1215 acres of grain, valued at $22,252, was burned and improvements destroyed totaled $12,114.

The car of young man ordered for Bravo Lake, near Woodlake, earlier in the season, has been shipped by the order of Captain of Patrol Officer E. Brown. There will be no chance of this car in the lake until the water situation is improved. It was reported a short time ago that the car was being driven up. There are few cars left in the lake now, and fewer still in the game reserves, since the time last year when it was permitted to be completely dry and hundreds of cars died. It is believed, however, that water will be flowing into the lake from the Kaweah river within a few weeks.

Sonoma county has embarked upon a new plan of paying its county of funds. The old method of part salary and fee has been done away with and under the provision of the new county government bill which became effective recently, fees that now are paid to the county treasury, and straight pay have been replaced. The officers affected principally were those of the sheriff, assessor, county clerk, surveyor and coroner. It was expected the salaries were supposed to be partially recompensed those who lost fees.

English Honors for Dawes

London.—In 1635 a stone mason named William Dawes left his home in Sudbury, Suffolk, and set sail for America. In 1929 one of his descendants, Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, left his home in America, and set sail for England as American ambassador to the court of St. James.

Sudbury desires to recognize officially the fact that the Dawes family prospered in America, and that the most notable member of the family has come back to England as official representative of the United States government. So Sudbury is to give a party for General Dawes.

The ceremony is scheduled for early in October. The freedom of the borough will be bestowed upon the American ambassador. There will be a public luncheon, followed by a special meeting of the council. The charming little town will do full justice to the occasion. The achievements of the Dawes family will be fittingly honored.

William Dawes was a boy of fifteen when he boarded the ship Planter on April 6, 1635, and started west to found the American branch of the Dawes family. His father, William Dawes, Sr., had gone out to America in 1628 with Governor Winthrop, founder of Boston and Salem, but returned the following year. He and his wife returned on the Ambrose and a son was born on the voyage. The boy was christened Ambrose.

General Dawes would like to know more about the first William Dawes, for there is no trace of him in the family history except for the record of his round trip to the New world. A great deal more is known about young William, founder of the American family. "He settled first in Braintree, Mass.," General Dawes said in tracing the family history, "where he married Susanna Mills of that place. The marriage took place about 1641, when William was twenty-one years of age. A son, named in the records Ambrose, after his ship-born uncle, was born in the same year.

"In the year 1652 we find William Dawes settled in Boston, where he built for himself a family mansion on the east side of a lane afterwards called 'Sudbury street.' Five generations of our family lived in this house until it was pulled down in 1775. William Dawes died in the year 1703, at the good old age of eighty-three, leaving numerous descendants, from one of whom I am descended."

A privately printed record of the Dawes family, published in Boston in 1876, was compiled by Henry W. Holland for the New England Historical and Genealogical society. General Dawes owns this work, which contains portraits and a complete genealogical tree. The American branch of the Dawes family has always claimed the right to the arms of Abraham Dawes, of Putney, who suffered under Cromwell and was made a baronet by Charles II at the restoration. The baronetcy is now extinct. The shield bears three swans on a bend in a field of six battle axes. The crest is a dragon supported by a battle ax.

WINS GOLF HONORS

Tommy Armour, lank Scot from Tam o' Shanter, emerged from the golfing eclipse which had covered him since the summer of 1927 to stalk off the eighteenth green at Ozaukee at Milwaukee, the possessor of the western open championship. Armour, with three of his four rounds under par, scored 273, which was less than his nearest competitor took.

Big Porcelain Memorial Dedicated in Germany

Meissen, Germany.—The world's greatest porcelain monument, which has taken eight years to complete, has just been dedicated in the seven hundred-year-old Nicola church in this city, where white porcelain was invented. The walls of the church are covered with 1,800 porcelain plates of citizens of Meissen killed during the World war. These plates are grouped around 30 over-life-sized porcelain figures of mourning mothers and eight giant porcelain figures holding the eternal death watch. Between altar and nave there is a large porcelain arch. In a special shrine, made also of porcelain, a golden book with records of the dead soldiers is kept.

Swift Justice Here
Greenwood, Miss.—Mayor John Ashcraft claims the unusual record of sitting as judge in police court on 2,222 cases in the two years he has been mayor of Greenwood. There are no jail waits, as the mayor-judge hears the case immediately after the arrest and pronounces sentence. Most cases have been disposed of within an hour after the arrest, he claims.

Aged Man Guards Big Bridge

Rio, Texas.—Far from civilization, unheeded and unsung, lives an old man upon whose shoulders rests responsibility for the safety of thousands of lives.

In the solitude of a gorge which the Grand canyon in size and beauty, J. R. Hutchins daily performs his duty of guardian of the third highway in the world.

Plunging its arms of steel across the river, about four miles from its mouth with the Rio Grande, the new high bridge daily carries the weight of a dozen Southern Pacific trains with their loads of hundreds of human beings.

To "Old Bob" Hutchins is entrusted the task of seeing that this lofty highway of steel remains in perfect condition and that neither the ravages of time nor the vicissitudes of climate detract from the rigidity of the structure.

Hutchins' house is tucked away among the rocks on the side of the canyon. Below him is the Pecos, 150 feet wide, impetuous in its rushing flight toward the Rio Grande; above him stretches his "pet," 1,521 feet long and 321 feet above the river bed.

The bridge, one of the greatest engineering feats of the West, is inspected daily. With an ear trained to catch the slightest variation in sound that comes as a train rumbles over the structure and an eye that can discern the slightest deflection of the huge towers, Hutchins guards this extensive piece of property.

"Old Bob" has been at his post for five years. He has watched the Pecos rise until it lapped at the very doorstep of his humble dwelling. He has pulled elephantine 100-pound cutters from the water and caught alligator garfish weighing over 200 pounds.

THE MAN FROM HOME

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

"The most reserved of men," William Shakespeare tells us, "that will not exchange two syllables together in an English coffee-house, should they meet in Isaphan, would drink sherbet and eat a mess of rice together," which is only another way of saying that if you put us into a new environment we will do and say things that neither force nor persuasion would induce us to do when we are at home.

"I don't mind telling you," the man returning to the United States from Hawaii said to the fellow from Milwaukee, whom he had just run into in the smoking compartment of the Pullman, "I don't mind telling you, though I shouldn't say it openly," and then he went into the most intimate details concerning himself, his family, his business, and just because the man came from his old home town. The man was lonesome, I suppose; he was out of his regular environment and that fact put him into a new frame of mind and led him to blow off his ordinary reserve.

I was walking down the street in Peoria with George Morris a few days ago, when we came upon a man who spoke to George in a most friendly way.

"That is Herbert Johnson," George explained to me, "I meet him almost every day on Michigan avenue in Chicago, and he never gives me a second glance, and here he greets me as if we were old friends. Funny, isn't it?" They were both away from home.

I ran across Carroll in Segovia, and I remember that the recognition of his face as I saw him coming along the street of that foreign city gave me a thrill of delight. No one in Segovia speaks any language but Spanish, and I know no Spanish excepting a few scattering phrases such as "how much" and "too much."

I had considered Carroll quite dull and uninteresting in his home town. I had even evaded him when circumstances seemed likely to bring us together. Now we almost threw our arms about each other. We had a common language and a common interest, and common friends at home and in a strange environment these things brought us closer together than we had ever been before. We became almost gregarious in our eagerness to talk to each other. We were like the two Englishmen meeting in Isaphan. He offered me a cigar—one of those terrible foreign cigars, of those terrible foreign cigars, I made of excelsior or manila rope. I am sure, the smoking of given me a headache for the rest of the day, and I accepted it with real enthusiasm. I accepted it without realizing what I was getting into.

We talked of old experiences and recalled old acquaintances, and revived old memories which I supposed had been wholly forgotten twenty

Mexico Makes War on Pirates

Mexico City.—Piracy and other contraband activities in Mexican Pacific waters, principally in the Gulf of California, are decreasing, due to measures taken by the government, according to Jose Lorenzo Sepulveda, director of fisheries.

Fishermen to the border waters have long been engaged in such activities as smuggling and pilfering and have been a source of worry to authorities, whom they have in many cases openly defied. Their acts have at times resulted in violence. They were organized to combat all opposition to their operations.

One piracy ring was known to have its head in Los Angeles, according to "Excelsior." Leaders of the ring sent large groups of men to the border waters in quest of loot. They carried fishing nets, less for the purpose of catching fish than as blinds.

Affairs came to a head recently, however, when President Emilio Portes Gil ordered Senor Sepulveda to "clean up" the California gulf. As a result of the activities of the director of fisheries, piracy in the Mexican Pacific is now noticeably declining.

With the revocation of alleged discriminatory tariff regulations governing fisheries in the Mexican waters, legal enterprises are springing up in place of fisheries which heretofore have operated without license.

Ring Long Lost Found in Nest of Maggie

Great Falls, Mont.—A ring lost five years ago was found securely imbedded in a magpie's nest here.

Roy Johnson lost the ring in 1924 while feeding cattle on a ranch 12 miles south of Belt. The ring was found the other day by Norman Johnson, ten, when the boy tore down a magpie's nest, built in the willow roof of an old cow shed. Twigs and grass were so closely woven around and through the ring that the lad had difficulty extricating the shining piece of gold.

Most Modern Harpoon Electrocutes Whales

London.—A new method of harpooning whales is more certain of the kill and less painful to the animal. A metal line is attached to the harpoon, and when it is imbedded in the victim a strong current is turned on electrocuting the whale.

Sights We Hope to See

THE BRIDE WHO IS A BETTER COOK THAN HER MOTHER-IN-LAW.

Sees Humans With Short, Frail Legs

London.—Human beings of a thousand years hence may have very short, frail legs and tiny feet with only four toes, according to the belief of Dr. Howard Somervell, the explorer of Mount Everest.

Somervell, who was talking to Kendal school boys, declared that in this age of automobiles, air liners, trailers and buses, human beings are actually forgetting to use their legs.

F. C. Jones, vice president of the Surrey Walking club, however, entirely disagrees with Doctor Somervell. He declares that there are thousands more people walking in Britain right now than ever before, and although thousands are going along on wheels there are just as many on foot.

"The point is this," said Jones: "there are fewer people who sit at home today than there were a few years ago. Besides, walking in the ordinary sense, walking as a sport and recreation is increasingly popular."

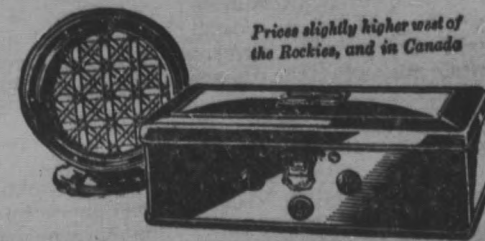

Brothers Meet After Long Separation

After being separated for sixty-one years, two brothers, Henry Durr Ruble of Toledo, Ohio, and George Washington Ruble of Desoto, Ill., have just been united. Both served through the Civil war and then each started out to carve his fortune, losing the address of the other. Recently, this missing mail, intended for one brother, was forwarded to the other, and led to the reunion which took place at the home of George in southern Illinois. Henry (left) was born in 1847 and his brother, George, in 1843.

Menlo Park

A Hotel For Atherton Remored

It was rumored this week that the big sale of property that has been pending for some time at Atherton will be consummated tomorrow. It is also said that a hotel is to be erected on the property to cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000.

A Little Bit of History

Had either of two things happened in Menlo's past this city would have been famous and perhaps the largest municipality on the peninsula. However, they did not occur. When Portola and his companions came down San Francisco creek after the discovery of the San Francisco bay they camped under the two redwood trees on the stream at the railroad bridge. Father Grisel, was so taken up with the beauties of the surrounding country that he made up his mind to establish a mission there. On investigation he discovered that there was not an abundance of water to justify the location of a mission and the project was abandoned. While camping there Portola sent out a scouting party under Lieutenant Ortega to make investigations along the peninsula. An Indian village was encountered near this place. The Indians proved to be a belligerent set and would not let the whitemen pass. They were fighting Indians. This fighting spirit has evidently been transmitted to the present generation. When Leland Stanford desired to locate his university here for a site. He sought the purchase of the property but discovered the Johnson heirs to be scattered to the four corners of the earth and it would be impossible to secure their release for the holding for years, and he therefore chose the present site for the great university. Had it been built here there would be no Palo Alto as Menlo Park would have been the university town and by this time would have a population of 20,000 souls. Thus Menlo Park lost its opportunity for fame and fortune. Other opportunities just as good may come, Quien sabe?

Menlo Exchange Club

The Menlo Exchange Club did not meet Tuesday evening for the reason that a number of the members went deer hunting during the week. No doubt venison will be served in every style next Wednesday evening when a large crowd will be present to hear the stories of the chase by the big hunters.

Improving Menlo Pool Hall

Raymond Hara, proprietor of the Menlo Pool Hall, is improving the beauty of the place by putting on a new roof to the structure and making other attractions. He has added a snooker table to the pool room.

To Leave for Philadelphia

Frank Campbell and his wife will depart tomorrow for Philadelphia. They will visit other eastern points, and will attend the world series at Philadelphia next month.

Home From Honolulu

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Douglas and their two pretty daughters, Ena and Florence Douglas, arrived from a trip to Honolulu on Tuesday and are resting at their home here.

A Unique Hold-Up

A unique hold-up took place here Monday evening last. A young man and his charming sweetheart rented a Lincoln car on Market street, San Francisco and directed the driver to convey them to Palo Alto. At the San Francisco Creek bridge the man said that he desired to visit friends in Stanford Park, so the driver drove his car up Middle avenue and when some distance up the street a pistol was pointed at him, and he was ordered to pass over his money. He handed the bandit $14. He was ordered out of the machine and was tied carefully to a pruned tree. The hold-up man drove away with the Lincoln car. The car nor the man has not been seen since. Neighbors hearing the cries of the man attached to the tree came to his relief.

Fire Department A Life Saver

The Menlo Fire Department, not only protects property of the people from the ravages of fire, but it also acts as a life saver in emergency cases. This week a daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Jedicke. Doctor Edith Johnson on delivering the child found it was suffering from spasms. After a long effort to get air into the tiny lungs of the infant, she almost gave up in despair. She telephoned the fire department for a pulmotor. The assistant Hara arrived and with all the skill of a physician dilated the lungs of the little patient with health giving air. The baby soon recovered. It giggled and almost laughed right out in the face of Doctor Hara. The little one is getting along nicely, thanks to Dr. Hara and his useful pulmotor.

In Memoriam

By CLAUDE FOX

Preston Rives, "Pres," as he was known to a host of friends both here and in Santa Clara county, where he was an old and respected citizen, has passed on over the ridge, that line which divides life from death, leaving as his survivors, two sons, Charles and Percy Rives, and many acquaintances, particularly among the deer hunting fraternity, to mourn his loss.

For a number of years, Mr. Rives had been in the employ of Joseph E. Shearer of Palo Alto and Arnold Hess, Jr., of this city, on their cattle ranches in the Mt. Hamilton range. Formerly he was a deputy sheriff of Santa Clara county, and when the state was shocked some years ago at the brutal murder and extermination of the McGlinchy family, "Pres" Rives headed the sheriff's posse through the mountains in an attempt to capture the murderer.

Monday last Mr. Rives, who had been in failing health, was brought to the home of Mr. Hess here, where he was given all aid possible and the next day removed to a San Jose hospital, where he passed peacefully away Wednesday morning.

"Pres" Rives was a man of strong character, loyal to his friends and employers, but bitter against those whom he considered not upright and straightforward. He would deny himself to assist those in need and his religion was founded on the one principle of doing unto others as he would have others do unto him.

"Pres" you will be missed but not forgotten. Mt. Day, Black Mountain and the ridges over which you rode will know you no more, but when the twilight hours come and the setting sun has kissed the dome of Lick Observatory good night, the whispering pines will sing a requiem to the soul of one who in this life was a man in the fullest sense of the word.

Bye-bye "Pres" until we meet again.

Exchangites Hear Vice-Counsel In Talk About Japan

An interesting talk on Japan was given before members of the Redwood City Exchange Club at the regular weekly meeting of that organization Tuesday evening by Vice-Consul Kawasaki of San Francisco. The speaker after briefly sketching the history of the island empire, emphasized the importance of the commerce between this country and Japan. He also spoke of the changes which have been made in Japan following the introduction of western mechanical products.

The chairman of the evening was J. F. Baughn, manager of the Redwood City Ice Delivery. A. J. Stenhouse gave an interesting talk on the constitution of the United States, which was much appreciated by those present, and a report on the recent golf tournament at Pebble Beach was given by J. R. Fox. The club selected Colin Stokes as captain of the volleyball team which will represent the club in the business men's league this year.

The club adjourned Tuesday in memory of J. J. Shields, late auditor of San Mateo county and a charter member of the local service club.
